Midnight Express

GenCana Energy Solutions (GES) blends the best of traditional concepts and education with contemporary methods and enabling technologies. The hallmark of GES is project execution and its ability to manage challenges as they arise during project execution. In addition, strategic technology acquisition has enabled GES to build infrastructure and platforms, enabling cost effective service delivery.

Program Review and Analysis

Once we have a thorough understanding of your corporate goals and objectives, we will review the current maintenance program status to produce a gap analysis. This analysis will form a component of your overall optimization strategy.

Maintenance Programs

The difference between achieving good and excellent is often found in the details. An effective maintenance program can help you achieve excellence. We can provide maintenance program review and analysis of its effectiveness. We can also provide assistance in choosing and implementing Predictive Maintenance (PDM), Computerized Maintenance Management Systems (CMMS), and Reliability Centered Maintenance (RCM) technologies and training.

New Technologies

The introduction of new technologies continues to escalate, leaving many wondering as to which technologies are the most appropriate to select in order to optimize operations performance. GES can implement a technology adoption process that correctly enhances any maintenance program and improves the operational reliability and cost control of an asset over its entire lifecycle.

Training

A critical component of the implementation of any new technology, policy or procedure is the integration of the appropriate activities to sustain and ensure the success of the new program. Training educates your employees on the reason for the changes and the benefits that will accrue to them and the company.
